I think one of the most outstanding traits he holds is the ability to coach a client, who really doesn't know much about video. He acts as a kind guide, a coach, and mentor, throughout the whole process. He doesn't take over, he helps you to take over and understand the role video plays in the viewers' decision-making process. And he does this without making you feel stupid. He takes you on a journey WITH him, and the end product is that much better because of it."
